Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was discussed: The examiner indicated that the arguments as presented in the Appeal Brief were persuasive, in that the rejection as currently written was not ready to be passed on to the Board of Appeals. The examiner stated that the art that is provided in the current rejection is strong in regards to current claims and that a new rejection which more clearly presents the rejection is contemplated (may include additional references for clarity or teaching). The examiner also proposed an amendment that if agreed to may place the claims in condition for allowance. The potential allowable subject matter (previously proposed in the advisory action mailed 9/10/2009) being an amendment to the independent claims; for instance, claim 13, line 9, deleting "made available" and inserting "that the computer system presents". Support being found in applicant's PG PUB 20050091122 para 41 and 50. Mr. Soderberg asked, what was the applicant's motivation to accept such a proposal? The examiner noted that if the applicant does not choose to accept the proposal then a new final rejection necessitated by the amendment filed 2/20/2009 would be forthcoming. However, if the applicant should agree to the proposed claim amendment then the examiner will search the claims in light of the amendment and if the combination is not reasonably found by the examiner's during the search then the application would pass to issue. If however, the combination was found in one reference or a combination of references then a new final rejection would be provided on the claims as provided in the current Appeal Brief. Mr. Soderberg indicated that he will contact the applicant and allow them to make the decision and said he would get back to the examiner later in the week.
